USDA Defined Terms

Source: U. S. Department of Agriculture, except where noted.

Certified - The term "certified" implies that the USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service and the Agriculture Marketing Service have officially evaluated a meat product for class, grade, or other quality characteristics (e.g., "Certified Angus Beef"). When used under other circumstances, the term must be closely associated with the name of the organization responsible for the "certification" process, e.g., "XYZ Company's Certified Beef".

Chemical Free - The term is not allowed to be used on a poultry label.

Free Range or Free Roaming - Producers must demonstrate to the Agency that the poultry has been allowed continuous, free access to the outside for over 51 percent of their lives. Producers can demonstrate this through testimonials and affidavits, or through certifications from certifying entities if USDA has evaluated the entity's "free range" or "free roaming" animal raising standards and determined that they are truthful and not misleading. (Source: USDA Presentation on Animal Raising Claims)

Fresh Poultry - The product's internal temperature has never reached below 26°F. Below 26°F, raw poultry products become firm to the touch because much of the free water is changing to ice. At 26°F, the product surface is still pliable and yields to the thumb when pressed.

Frozen Poultry - Temperature of raw, frozen poultry is 0°F or below.

Natural or "All Natural" - If a product containing no artificial ingredient or added coloring ingredient or chemical preservatives, and the product and its ingredients are only minimally processed (a process which does not fundamentally alter the raw product), that product may be labeled "natural." However, the label must also explain the use of the term natural (such as - no added colorings or artificial ingredients; minimally processed.) (Source: USDA Food Standards and Labeling Policy Book, p.116)

No Hormones - Hormones or steroids are not allowed in raising hogs or poultry. Therefore, the claim "no hormones added" cannot be used on the labels of pork or poultry unless it is followed by a statement that says "Federal regulations prohibit the use of hormones."

No Antibiotics - The term "no antibiotics added" may be used on labels for meat or poultry products if sufficient documentation is provided by the producer to the Agency demonstrating that the animals were raised without antibiotics.

Organic - Products labeled as "100 percent organic" must contain (excluding water and salt) only organically produced ingredients and processing aids. Products labeled "organic" must consist of at least 95 percent organically produced ingredients (excluding water and salt). Any remaining product ingredients must consist of nonagricultural substances approved on the National List including specific non-organically produced agricultural products that are not commercially available in organic form.

For more information about the National Organic Program and use of the term "organic" on labels, refer to these factsheets from the USDA Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS):

- Organic Food Standards and Labels: The Facts
- Labeling and Marketing Information

USDA Process Verified - Companies with approved USDA Process Verified Programs are able to make marketing claims associated with their process verified points such as age, source, feeding practices, or other raising and processing claims and market themselves as "USDA Process Verified" with use of the "USDA Process Verified" shield and term. (Source: <http://www.ams.usda.gov/AMSV1.0/PYProcessVerifiedPrograms>)

To receive approval for a Process Verified Program, a company is obligated to:

1. Present a detailed program to USDA with support for why this program is appropriate and accurate
2. Implement the program successfully
3. Pass continual audits from the USDA AMS auditors
4. If new validated practices evolve in the future, the program must change to include these new practices

Perdue is the FIRST poultry company to have a "USDA Process Verified" program. Process Verified means that Perdue has been evaluated and verified by USDA in the following two areas:

- All Vegetarian Fed - Chickens are fed a high quality vegetarian diet, with no animal by-products.
- Raised Cage Free - Perdue chickens are free to roam within the chicken houses.
